BEFORE YOU START

An action plan is not a memoir.

Your North Star showed you where you stand. This plan is what you do about it: twenty steps inside you and one weekly habit, so you arrive at the Launchpad ready to work on the numbers.

Each of the four domains walks the same five moves.

1	2	3	4	5
The truth you hide	The root	Out loud	The fear	Twelve weeks, measured

Then step 21 keeps it alive: your inner boardroom, every Sunday.

Write by hand.
The pen is slower than your excuses.

One step at a time.
In order. A step a week is a good pace.

Done means done.
Tick it when the "Done when" is true, not when the blank is full.

01 Lead yourself

PERSONAL · INSIDE

> "Personal leadership starts by noticing the difference between being required and being dependable."
> ALEXANDRU, A New Way of Winning

1 The exception you make for yourself

THE TRUTH YOU HIDE

You hold others to a standard you excuse in yourself, because you think your situation is different.

The standard I hold others to, but do not keep myself:

Why I tell myself I am the exception:

From today it applies to me first. The first time I keep it: _____ (day)

DONE WHEN you kept your own standard once, on the day you wrote.

2 The drive behind your desire

THE ROOT

Something happened to you that made you want this so much, and think this way. Find it.

What happened to me that made me desire this, and think this way:

The result I will never let go of:

DONE WHEN you can say both in one breath, without notes.

OUT LOUD

Unleash it: two habits out

You play with the desire and the drive, but you never fully go after your mission: serving the people who have the problem you have the solution for.

Say it out loud. The two habits I keep because I only play with my drive: 1 _____ 2 _____

What I do instead, starting _____ (day):

DONE WHEN you said it out loud to one person, and replaced one habit for one week.

THE FEAR

The voice that says you are not good enough

Somebody's voice is still yelling at you. It is not yours, but you have been obeying it.

Whose voice is still telling me I am not good enough: _____

What it says:

What I answer from now on:

DONE WHEN you wrote your answer and read it aloud the next time the voice came.

TWELVE WEEKS, MEASURED

Twelve weeks of truth (mandatory)

Feeling in control is not control. Writing it down and measuring it is.

For the next 12 weeks I write down what I work on, measure my goals and estimate when each will be achieved.

I start on _____ (date). My first goal: _____ · I estimate it done by _____ DONE WHEN week 1 is written in your Leader's Growth Planner.

02 Lead your people

PERSONAL · OUTSIDE

> "Dependability begins with promises small enough to keep and important enough to matter."
> ALEXANDRU, A New Way of Winning

6 The conversation you call patience

THE TRUTH YOU HIDE

There is one person in your work you avoid a real conversation with. You call it patience. It is protection.

The person: _____ The conversation I avoid:

What I tell myself, so I do not have to have it:

DONE WHEN you named the person and the conversation.

7 Who taught you how to lead

THE ROOT

You lead the way you were led, or exactly against it. Find which.

The first person who led me: _____ What I copied from them:

What I swore I would never do, and still do:

I tell _____ one thing I am changing in how I lead, by _____ (day).

DONE WHEN one person on your team has heard what you are changing.

OUT LOUD

Have it, face to face

Said kindly and plainly, the hard sentence is a gift, not an attack.

The sentence I have avoided:

I say it face to face on _____ (day), and end with: "What do you need from me?"

They answered:

DONE WHEN the conversation happened this week.

THE FEAR

The fear of not being needed

If they can do it without you, who are you? Answer that, and you can finally let go.

If my team did not need me for _____, I would feel: _____

Who I am beyond being needed:

This week I let _____ decide _____ without me.

DONE WHEN one decision was made without you, and you let it stand.

10

TWELVE WEEKS, MEASURED

Twelve weeks: one person grows

Leadership shows in what others can do without you.

For 12 weeks _____ takes on _____ (no team yet: a tool, a template, a freelancer).

Every Friday we check it in 10 minutes. Week 12, it runs without me: yes / not yet

DONE WHEN the first Friday check is in your calendar.

03 Lead your business

BUSINESS · INSIDE

> "Courage without economic understanding can create promises the business cannot fund."
> ALEXANDRU, A New Way of Winning

11 Where you play small

THE TRUTH YOU HIDE

Somewhere in your business you charge, ask or decide smaller than you know you should. It feels humble. It is fear.

Where I play small (a price, a client I keep, a cost I accept):

What it looks like at my true size:

DONE WHEN you wrote both, side by side, and did not soften the second.

12 What money means to you

THE ROOT

Your prices often come from your childhood, not from your market.

What I learned about money growing up:

Is it true for my business today? _____ What I believe from now on:

The price I raise, or the invoice I send, because of it: _____ by

_____ (day)

DONE WHEN you acted once on the new belief.

13

OUT LOUD

Your worth, out loud

If you say your price with an apology, the client hears the apology, not the price.

My price, said plainly:

I say it out loud, with no discount and no sorry, to _____ by _____ (day).

DONE WHEN you said it once, then stayed silent and let them answer.

14

THE FEAR

The fear of it really working

Some founders keep the business small because success would change something they are afraid to lose.

If this business really worked, what I am afraid would change:

What I protect on purpose from now on, so the business can grow: _____

I protect it this week on _____ (day).

DONE WHEN you named what you protect, and protected it once.

15

TWELVE WEEKS, MEASURED

Twelve weeks: a half-day without you

A business that needs you every day owns you.

For 12 weeks I take one half-day a week away from the business. My day:

After each one I write: what broke _____ · what did not

DONE WHEN the first half-day away is in your calendar.

04 Lead the market

BUSINESS · OUTSIDE

> "Stick to what you do best, and serve people."
> ALEXANDRU

16 The people you are hiding from

THE TRUTH YOU HIDE

The people with the problem you solve are waiting for someone to ask.

The people who have the problem I solve, and whom I am not talking to:

Why I am not:

Three of them, by name: 1 _____ 2 _____ 3 _____

_____ I write to all three by _____ (day).

DONE WHEN three names, three messages sent.

17 Why asking feels like begging

THE ROOT

If selling feels like begging, you learned that asking is taking. Serving is giving, and asking is how it starts.

Where I learned that asking makes me a burden:

What the people I do not ask are left with:

I ask _____ this week, as a gift, not a favor. By _____ (day).

DONE WHEN you asked one person, and meant it as service.

18

OUT LOUD

Your story, out loud

People trust someone who has walked the road. Your story is the proof.

The problem I solve, and how I lived it myself:

I tell it out loud, in under a minute, to _____ by _____ (day).

What they said: " _____ "

DONE WHEN you told your story once, out loud, in under a minute.

19

THE FEAR

The no you are afraid of

A no is information, not a verdict on you.

What I am afraid they will say:

What I will answer:

DONE WHEN you heard one no, and answered it calmly.

20

TWELVE WEEKS, MEASURED

Twelve weeks: one brave move a week

Courage is a muscle. It grows only when you use it in public.

For 12 weeks, one brave move a week: an ask, a price, a post, a no.

Every week I write: the move _____ · what I feared _____ ·

what happened _____

DONE WHEN week 1's brave move is written in your Leader's Growth Planner.

21

The Leader's step: sit your inner boardroom every week

Inside you, four voices argue about every decision. The Dreamer wants. The Critic doubts. The Realist counts. Only the Leader decides.

Dreamer HEART

What do I want, and for whom?

Critic HEAD

What am I avoiding, and what could go wrong?

Realist HANDS

What will it really take: hours, money, people?

Leader SERVICE

What is the one move this week, and who do I serve?

DONE WHEN every Sunday for 12 weeks, ten minutes, written down.

The Leader's Growth Planner 2027

Your year, your months and 52 weeks. Each week, plan it on the left and hold your Sunday boardroom on the right: what you planned, what really happened, and your one move for the week ahead.
